The Salt Year by Nell Garroway (Harrow Lane Books, 2018)

Questions for discussion

1. The marsh is described as an argument between land and sea. Where else in the novel does that argument appear?

2. Why does Anna stay the full year when she could leave the sale to the agent?

3. How do the villagers' stories about Tom differ from Anna's memories, and whose do you believe?

4. What does the salt itself come to mean by the end?

5. Is the ending hopeful? Why, or why not?

6. Anna counts the creeks when she arrives. What else does she count, and what does counting do for her?
